To

of the Christian Tract Society
in London,

Dear brothers.

With our most sincere thanks for the collection of valuable theological writings that you have destined for the library of our missionary institute, we humbly request that you kindly exchange the enclosed volume of Christian biographies, which we have received twice, with the one that begins with the biography of Dr. Watts, which we are missing.

The bearers of this letter are the two missionaries of our society, Pastors Teichelmann and Schürmann, who are about to depart for the new colony of South Australia to establish an independent mission there. We commend them to your Christian love and intercession and particularly request that you support them in their difficult work with tracts or larger works from your society, as they will need them. In return, they will write very precise tracts in the language of the indigenous people of South Australia as soon as they become proficient in it.

We enclose our latest report, which recently appeared in the press, and we intend to continue sending you the missionary news that our society will publish in the future.

Please accept our most profound respect, with which we remain,

dear brother, your most devoted

committee of the Evangelical Lutheran Mission Society, dispatched on March 19th.
